

Small town girl to international photographer

Monday 11th January 2016 06:25 EST

21-year-old professional travel and street photographer, Riya Sharma, from Kalol, Gujarat will be exhibiting her work at The Brick Lane Gallery, London, in January 2016.

Sharma graduated in Travel Photography and Professional Photography at the New York Institute of Photography (NYIP). She also holds a professional press card from NYIP and is an official photographer for their PhotoWorld Magazine.

She will also be exhibiting her work at the Agora Gallery, New York, in April, as well as the SPECTRUM, Miami.

This is, indeed, a remarkable story of a small town girl who had stars in her eyes, and worked immensely hard to fulfil her dreams.
